

Madge (Margaret Paterson) Hogarth (1892-1991)

Madge Hogarth was born in Portage La Prairie, Manitoba in 1892, and spent her early years in Winnipeg. During World War I she went overseas where she drove an ambulance. She there met and later married Lieutenant Colonel Donald MacDonald Hogarth (later Major General), a Canadian serving overseas with the Department of Supply and Transport.

On their return to Canada, a smoldering interest in the north was ignited when General Hogarth became deeply involved in sub arctic mining ventures. Although Madge never resided in a community north of Winnipeg, her interest in the north never waned.

Madge was deeply involved in churches in northern Canada, and in local and national charities. She supported and spent many hours working with the Grenville Mission, libraries and universities, as well as a number of recreational facilities and parks. Madge was the prime founder of the Vancouver Garden Club and was responsible for the installation of a fragrant garden for people with visual impairments and a garden for children with disabilities, both in Toronto.

General Hogarth died in 1950, and Madge moved from Toronto to Vancouver to be close to her brother, Dr. Donald Paterson and his wife, Dorothy. In 1967 Madge married Lyman Trumbull, a Vancouver businessman and philanthropist.

Madge was a practical, kind, caring and sharing person. She had a keen sense of humour and a joie de vivre. Her legacy for the north is The Madge Hogarth Foundation, and through it her faith and generosity live on. The Madge Hogarth Foundation, in existence since 1974, has assisted clergy and their small congregations to reach objectives they feel important in the practice of their religion and in the conduct of their lives within a Christian congregation.

Funding Guidelines

Grant Range: $1,000 - $5,000

Eligibility

- Christian churches in isolated northern communities with populations of fewer than 5,000.
- Communities situated north of the 54th parallel and west of Hudson's Bay, including British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, the Yukon, the Northwest Territories and Nunavut. Please note that all of Nunavut is eligible for funding.
- Although not a high priority, flexibility in assessment will be exercised on compelling proposals from the capital cities of the Territories and from communities with populations of 5,000 or greater.
- Only one application per church is permitted per year, to a maximum of $5,000.

Funding Priorities:

- Projects that serve and work with peoples of the North;
- Churches with a significant composition of First Nations people;
- Churches with ecumenical philosophies or projects with an ecumenical focus;
- Collaborative initiatives representing more than one Christian faith;
- Churches which make an effort to fund part of the project themselves;
- Projects that emphasize outreach to the community;
- Demonstrated need.

How to Apply
